TO THE CLASS OF 1962

To the graduating class I extend congratulations for completing the first steps which start to shape your lives. You are now at a point where THE HOME, THE SCHOOL, and THE COMMUNITY have done what they can to develop IN EACH INDIVIDUAL the knowledge, interests, ideals, habits, and view of powers whereby you may find a place and use that place to shape both yourself and society toward ever nobler and happier ends. How noble and how happy depends on you.

Sincerely,

George L. Murray

LITERARY

EX LIBRIS

The Last Heartbeat
by Beverly Babb

The house is still-the night so deep,
Everyone is sleeping; they can't hear me weep.
My mother is dying in her hospital bed;
Would tomorrow bring news that my mother was dead?
The night so long . . . so agony filled . . .
The wind blows; my body is chilled.
I keep remembering the days gone by;
When my mother o'er my bed would cry.
In my innocent youth, I did not know
That a careless remark would hurt her so.
She always tried so hard to please
And to accept each fault of mine with ease.
Each time I failed and did something wrong;
She would punish me, but not for long.
As I look back upon the years,
My eyes begin to fill with tears,
It causes my heart to fill with pain
To know those times won't live again.
Some of the moments I can remember
Glow in my mind like a burning ember,
Each Christmas as we decorated the tree
She would e'er try to make it happy for me,
The birthdays when I'd add on a year,
The day we decided my future career.
Each little memory every pleasant time
Thrill my being with thoughts so sublime.
Now the darkness of night fades away
The first rays of sunlight opens the day;
The time is drawing closer when my mother will die.
I'll think of all the fun we had, trying not to cry.
As I stand in my mother's room,
All happy thoughts are changing to gloom;
I struggle to grasp her hand in mine
As she wings her way to the Savior divine.

My Destiny
by Rachel Carter

My vocational interests are quite different today from what they were five years ago.
At the ripe old age of eleven years, my objective in life was to be a homemaker. Can you imagine that? I must admit times have inevitably changed, and I too. Along with the mellowing of these tempestuously, adolescent years of indecision, I have merged victorious. My brain is thoroughly clear because my life's vocation has been definitely chosen. My destiny, until fate is vanquished, will be that of a melodious old maid!

Qu'est ce que je fais bien
by Normand Theberge

En essayant penser
De quoi je fais bien,
J n'ai pensé
À absolument rien.
Quand je parle, personne ne me comprend
Quand j'ecris, je reçois de mauvais notes.
Quand je marche, je fais du bruit.
C'est pourquoi je suis assis
Quand je mange, je mange trop
C'est pourquoi je suis si gros.
Quand je pense, je deviens étourdie
C'est pourquoi je me suis fini.
Qu'est ce que faire avec tant
De bonnes qualités?

"Success"
by Judy Long

As we walk silently
Along the empty halls
We stop and gaze at visions
That only memory recalls.

The past four years at Berwick High
Have run their courses true
Freshman, sophomore, junior year
Now senior year is through.

The time that we have given
To gain an education
Will prove that success is a journey
And not a destination.

Study Hall Etiquette
by Alice Bartlett

During my years at Berwick High, I have become quite familiar with study halls. These are a few helpful hints that I would like to pass along. Always enter a study hall late. When you enter, make some noise like scuffing your feet, or even better, put taps on the bottom of your shoes. Upon reaching your desk, slam your books down. This will create the impression that you are very studious.

Bring candy or gum to study halls. If you chew gum, snap it; and if you chew candy, make as much noise as possible. People might think you are hungry and give you something to eat.

Throw all papers, wrappers, and other junk on the floor. Why bother with a wastebasket? The floor is nearer, and the janitor might as well earn his pay.

When you raise your hand to ask the teacher something, snap your fingers, whistle, or drop a book. You will be sure to get the teacher's attention. When you go to the library, take your time; let the others wait. Don't be afraid to speak to someone else. You don't want people to think you are anti-social. Don't pay attention to the librarians. The library also gives you an opportunity to show your acting talent. Make faces and queer motions. You can do better than Red Skelton anytime. A study hall provides an opportunity to improve your knowledge of airplanes. You can fly your jets around the study hall, or if your jet is made for long distance flying, you can shoot it out the window. Only be sure to yell "Bombs Away" when you do, so the people below will not get hit. The teacher will appreciate your thoughtfulness.

Be friendly to those who sit around you. If they are doing homework, be sure to offer them advice, even if you haven't the faintest idea what the subject is about. They will appreciate your willingness to be helpful.

Be the first to leave when the bell rings. This will create an impression of eagerness to go to class. If, however, you meet a friend, stop and talk right where you are. After all, friendship is more important than blocking traffic. If you follow this advice, to the letter, I prophesy that before the year is out, you will become very familiar with the inside of the principal's office.

The Adventures of an Apple
by Carol Ferm

I was once a shiny apple adhering to a fruitful tree. When I reached maturity, my owner picked me precariously. He negligently tossed me into a crate where I felt bruised and squashed. I instantly found that I had company, and timidly I asked the adjacent occupant, "What is happening?" Before a reply could be summoned, we were brutally hoisted upon a truck and taken to a packing room. Here I was measured for size, carefully polished, and placed neatly in a box. I was rushed abruptly into the supermarket where massive crowds lingered. I was stared at, picked up, put back, until I felt like apple sauce. Eventually, a little boy must have taken pity on me, for he promptly picked me up and said with a smile, "Oh boy! This is for me." After I was paid for, without losing any precious time, the little boy devoured me.

Our Future
by Larry Collins

In the course of human nature, there is a provision for our generation and generations to follow. Included in that provision is a turning point in everyone's life known as maturity and a change from a dependent to an independent state. We, as seniors, must face the great responsibility that lies before us and the rest of our nation: that of protecting our so-called classless but independent society. There are many situations which will acquire from us the knowledge and wisdom obtained during our high school years. As we enter the world in which our very survival depends upon our knowledge of it, let us not forget our motto. "Success is a journey . . ." which we will always be striving to maintain - "not a destination" - which can easily be achieved.

The VARSITY "B" CLUB got off to a roaring start this year by preparing for a trip to Boston. Here we saw the BOSTON CELTICS and the BOSTON BRUINS in action.

To raise money for this trip, we held a CHRISTMAS DANCE. The highlights of which were a visit by SANTA CLAUS and his HELPERS. This was a grand occasion. Food sales were planned and a fun-filled GIRLS VS BOYS BASKETBALL GAME was an outstanding spectacle, and a pre-lim to a St. Valentines Dance. All proceeds financed our Bostin trip. Fun was had by all.

Under the direction of "Coach Clark", this years "B" Club had a very successful and eventful year.

Since 1958, under the coaching of Joseph Godin, the Berwick Bears have been undefeated in Dual Meets with a record of 21-0 in the State of Maine and losing only one dual meet in the State of New Hampshire.

After winning the Southern York County League Championship for six consecutive years, and by losing by a mere seven points was a great disappointment for all.

Although disappointed in losing the S.Y.C.L., the Bears were real proud when Russ Knight took first place.

After losing nine seniors from last years team, including four starters, the Bears suffered a dismal season. Although being discouraged time and again by defeat, the boys were determined not to give up and gradually improved as the season progressed.

They set an all time high in scoring by recording a total of 110 points against a North Berwick foe on the latters home court.

Even though the Bears went down to defeat to most of their opponents, they were able to upset Wells High School to earn a seat in the tournament at Lewiston for the 3rd consecutive year. However, the boys were out-classed by top seated Pennell Institute and bowed out of the tournament in the 1st round.

The outlook for next year looks promising with several underclassmen returning for another season.

Good Defensive work was shown by Junior, Becky Merithew. The Girls showed a great amount of speed and were in there fighting all the way. Good job girls!

“SOUTHERN YORK COUNTY WESTERN DIVISION CHAMPS”

Hard hitting by Richard Lajoie, Warren Clement, and Paul Gagnon plus the fine pitching of Warren Clement, Charlie Allan, and John Reardon, Berwick High School had another successful baseball season.

The season was high-lighted by pitcher duels at South Berwick and St. Ignatius. Both of these contests could have gone either way from the first to last inning.

Fred Goodrich gave the spectators a few moments of thrill with his timely long ball hitting, including a three run homer against South Berwick. Richard Lajoie was the leading batter on the squad with a .483 batting average. Warren Clement was the backbone of the pitching staff with a record of 4 wins and 2 losses. Our team scoring was 87 runs for the opposition. Good luck to the Bears next year.

Losing 14 members of the 1960 track squad, Coach Joe Godin suffered another building year. In their first meet at Buxton, the Bears captured a $47 \frac{2}{3}$ to $27 \frac{1}{3}$ victory. However, the lack of experience in most events proved to be an overpowering factor as the boys failed to win another meet.

Matching their skills against powerful opponents from Somersworth, Kennebunk, and State Class M Champions-Wells High, the boys were constantly exposed to keen competition.

Next year, more boys will be returning and with practice, should have a favorable season.

JUNIOR HIGH

The Junior High participated in the Somersworth Grammer School Tournament for the first time this year. Billy Merithew was selected for the all-tournament team, while Barry Lacasse took team foul shooting honors.

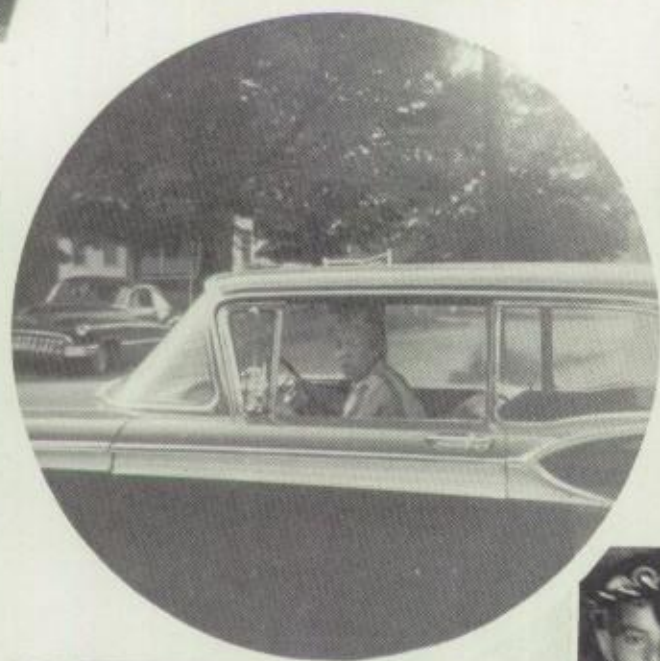

The cheerleaders were runner-up in their competition as was the seventh grade team. Although the eighth grade team lost its contests, in both games the oppositions' victory margin was small and not easily gained.

The Cubs wound up their season with a record of 10 wins and 6 losses.

Among the school's other extra-cirrucular activities is a Pong League consisting of 48 boys ranging from the 4th grade to the 6th. These boys are coached by capable Varsity members and hold games amongst themselves.

Berwick High is hoping for championship teams in the years to come. Good luck, boys!

Turning back the pages in history, we find a legend which should be retold. With that in mind, the yearbook staff presents to you "The Legend of Berwick" reprinted from the 1935 Navillus.

"THE LEGEND OF BERWICK"

Years ago the mighty Black Arrow,
Chief of all the Indian land,
Called his braves to all make ready
To move to another land.

Days they travelled, farther onward
'Till at last they came one day
To a lonely, winding river
Where a little clearing lay.

Then the chief said, "Here my people,
Has the good spirit guided us.
Let us settle here forever
And plant this for our own use."

So they labored night and morning
Till at last one blessed day
On the banks of that same river
A mighty Indian village lay.

Years they lived mid peace and plenty
Catching salmon from the stream,
Getting all the meat they needed
From the forest, tall and green.

Then at last, the great good spirit
Left their midst, for in great haste
Up the river in hugh boatloads
Came men of another race.

They were white, not red like Indians
But they met with welcome kind,
And they lived there with the Indians
In what shelter they could find.

Then one fatal day the redmen
Noticed this, with deep remorse.
That from one bend of the river
Stones were being put across.

Chief Black Arrow called the whitemen
And in manner cold and grave
Said, "I trusted you as friends but
You betrayed my trust, now leave."

But the white men only shook their heads
And minded not a word,
And from dawn of day to sunset
The awful ring of stones was heard.

Day by day the dam grew higher
While the Indians watched in pain
Knowing that in just a few days
They must pack and move again.

For the damming of the river
Cut off their supply of fish,
And the whitemen would not listen
To the Indian's slightest wish.

Then at last the dam was finished
And the whitemen laughed with glee,
But the mighty Chief Black Arrow
Said, "Now, whitemen, hark to me."

On the hill behind the river
He and all his braves stood round,
And he looked down at the whitemen,
As they looked down at the ground.

"Listen to me, oh ye whitemen,
We are leaving you your goal
But from this year and forever
This same river will take its toll.

Every year a loved young white child
Will perish as a token
Of the way you hurt the Indians
I, Black Arrow, now have spoken."

Proudly turning, but with sadness,
He stalked off into the haze
While the badly frightened whitemen
Stood there as if in a daze.

And from that time to the present,
Every year, so it is said,
The little river, Salmon Falls
Has claimed one for its dead.

Yes, friends, the town was Berwick,
The hill was Prospect Hill
The river was the Salmon Falls
The Indian name used still.

And the next time that you cross it
Please remember, if you can
That there always is some sadness
When you harm a fellow man.
